

Get ready for an agricultural safety and health meeting unlike any other! The 2018 North American Agricultural Safety Summit – February 21–23, 2018 at the Embassy Suites by Hilton Resort in Scottsdale, Arizona – will use non-traditional sessions to match safety interventions with production practices and emerging safety issues.

“Intentionally and systematically building a culture of safety in agriculture, from the smallest to the largest producers or agriculture related businesses is more than an ethics issue, it is also the only way to build profitable and sustainable businesses.”

—Frank Gasperini, President & CEO, ASHCA and CEO, FGasperini Associates, LLC

The Summit, hosted by ASHCA, will build upon sessions that bundle global thinking with hands-on learning and networking. These innovative opportunities to interact with industry leaders and safety experts will give you valuable knowledge on current industry trends and safety concerns.

- ▶ SPONSORSHIP AND EXHIBITOR OPPORTUNITIES AVAILABLE!
- ▶ POSTER SESSION – CALL FOR ABSTRACTS DEADLINE: DECEMBER 13, 2017

WHO IS ASHCA?

The Agricultural Safety and Health Council of America™ is a not-for-profit 501c (3) organization established to pursue national strategies to create less-hazardous work environment for American agriculture. Founded in 2007, our mission is to proactively address ongoing and emerging occupational safety and health issues affecting everyone engaged in all facets of U. S. agriculture.

ASHCA is a coalition of farms, ranches, producer associations, and other related agricultural people, organizations, and businesses; joining together with safety associations, Federal & State agencies, educational institutions, and safety professionals, all seeking to improve the health and safety of all agricultural workers.

ASHCA'S PURPOSE

- See an overall culture of safety as an integral part of day to day work in every agricultural enterprise.
- Raise the profile of worker safety within every agricultural enterprise.
- Guide the development of effective delivery systems for safety and health information, programming, and training to farmers, growers, ranchers, and other agricultural businesses and their workers
- Influence research priorities to rapidly identify real-world best management practices for worker safety and health that maximize cost efficiency and sustainability.
- Pursue effective national strategies to reduce disease, injuries and fatalities in all aspects of U.S. agriculture.
